

New land push from builders, parks

Dougherty is developers' latest target

Focus of Valley development could shift to a rolling stretch of countryside between Contra Costa and Alameda counties, where a large subdivision received preliminary approval this week.

The San Ramon Valley Community Planning Committee said it has no objections to a proposed 2,000-unit housing project straddling county lines between Dougherty Road, Dublin, and Alcosta Boulevard, San Ramon, with most of the building in Alameda County.

Meanwhile, Contra Costa supervisors let a $1,000 contract to begin searching for a second county airport, that may locate nearby in the Tassajara Valley.

Both projects are still in their infancy, but it could mean a change of scene for land that until now has been populated by grazing cattle.

The Allison Company of Southern California plans to develop 300 acres near Dougherty Road with multiple-family and cluster homes. Kuwait Investment Company owns the property. SWA of Sausalito and Creegan and D'Angelo of Dublin are engineers for the project.

Most of the homes would be built on the eastern side of the hilly property, Ed Kagle of SWA said.

Representatives said probably no more than 500 homes would be built in Contra Costa County, with most of the cluster homes in Alameda County.

Not far away, in the upper Tassajara Valley, a second Contra Costa County airport could be located, though it is not a primary site according to county supervisors.

They signed a $1,000 contract with A.J. Parry Co. to investigate potential locations. A new airport would siphon overflow from crowded Buchanan Field in Concord.

Picket line threatening horse races

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — Fair board directors yesterday rejected an offer by the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association to operate track facilities and the 12-day race schedule.

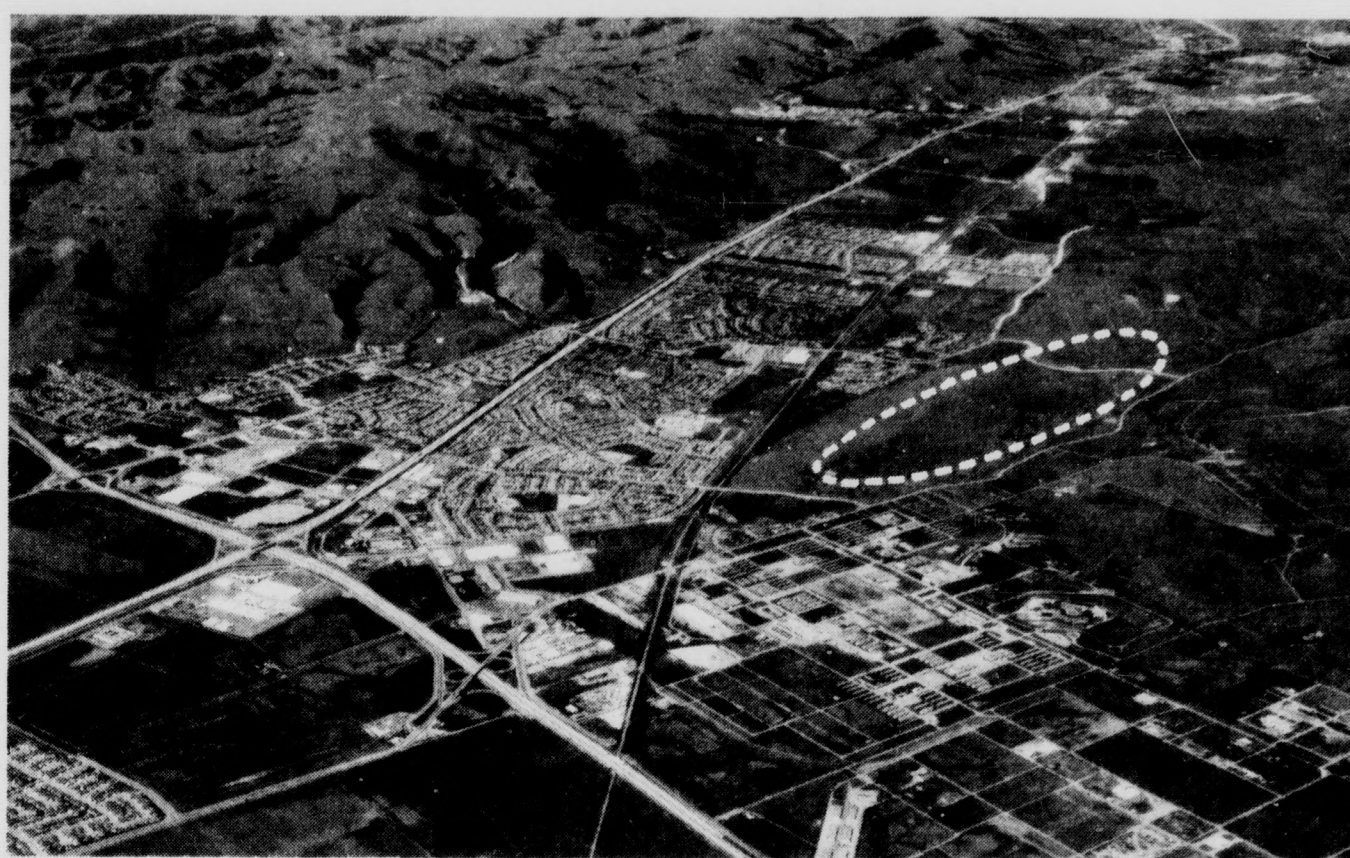

The offer by Northern California HBPA Chairman Mike Steele came amid fears the annual horse racing fete at the county fair may be delayed or scrubbed.

The fair opens Sunday. Fair association secretary-manager Lee Hall said the board passed up the HBPA's offer to run the track's pari-mutuel and track grooming operation because "they simply aren't qualified."

The offer, he added, was appreciated.

Meanwhile, fair officials are waiting for a Sunday decision by teamsters representing 234 parking attendants, grandstand ushers, messengers and stairway controllers on whether or not they'll cross the county employees picket lines at the Pleasanton fairgrounds.

One of the last stretches of open space in the Dublin-San Ramon area is now the target of a major subdivision proposal. Flanked by Dougherty Road, the development of single family homes and multiples would extend down the eastern slope of that crest of land which is just west of Camp Parks. The area is marked here generally as proposed, straddling the county line (indicated by arrow at left). Off to the right of this aerial view is Tassajara Valley, the upper part of which is being studied as one possibility for a new Contra Costa County airport.

A 'socialistic race,' complain the ranchers

To some, the East Bay Regional Park District is a guardian of open space and parkland for the Bay Area.

To others, EBRPD is a sinister force that moves in on ranchers to snatch their land for the public domain.

The Contra Costa-Alameda County park district absorbs $22 million a year in taxes from the 1.7 million people living within its bounds. Only Livermore area residents and some landowners in rural eastern Contra Costa County have resisted joining the controversial park district.

EBRPD now owns 32 parcels of parkland, including Del Valle, Sunol and Shadow Cliffs Regional Parks in the Valley. Recent purchases have included acreage off Morgan Territory Road; north of Camp Parks; and adjacent to Las Trampas Regional Park in San Ramon.

Now, EBRPD officials are thinking of paying $175 an acre for a large, mountainous parcel off Mines Road, the estate of Margaret Rowell. (The late Mrs. Rowell also owned the rodeo ranch in the Dublin Canyon, which is expected to go to the Hayward Area Recreation District.)

That's getting too close for comfort, according to some local landowners who see themselves becoming encircled with public lands. Between the San Francisco Water District's watershed holdings in Sunol; Sunol Regional Park adjacent to that; EBRPD's remote Camp Ohlone property southeast of Sunol; the Rowell property; and Del Valle, a circle is formed that is almost contiguous.

Perhaps half a dozen ranch holdings are left including the Wauhab property, which EBRPD may want to add to their ridgeland holdings; the Patterson and N-3 Ranches; and a large spread tucked in between the SF Water Department lands and Sunol Regional Park, owned by rancher Bill Apperson.

What's wrong with being surrounded by parks?

Plenty, according to Apperson. Dagmar Fulton, whose Orloff family lands in Pleasanton have already been sold off because of pressure from development, added her views in an interview yesterday.

The pair, along with other concerned landowners, have been trying to check what they consider government's "socialistic" race to take over agricultural land.

"An official once said to me, 'Some day we're going to have a necklace of parks in the Bay Area,'" Apperson remembers. The official said it with pride. But it sounded ominous to the Pleasanton rancher, whose family has owned their land since 1873.

Spreading out a big map, Apperson points out how the scattered public lands are already beginning to link up into a chain, with proposed bike and hiking trails connecting the parks.

One of those proposed trails ran through a corner of Apperson's property ... until he set EBRPD straight in no uncertain terms.

According to 1975 California Department of Real Estate figures, more than 50 per cent of the land in California is already publicly owned.

"And off the tax rolls," Apperson points out. "What does that do to the taxes for the rest of us property owners?"

Taxes are already so high that ranchers have had to place their holdings under the Williamson Act in order to make a profit. That means their taxes are cut—but so is the assessed valuation their land.

Then, says Apperson, the park district or another government agency comes along and snaps up the land at its deflated price—either by buying an estate when its heirs can't pay the inheritance taxes, or by condemning the property if they can justify it.

Stanford memorial to Karen Theiss

Stanford University will name a building and playground after Karen Theiss who grew up in the valley and died last week in an accident in Palo Alto.

Theiss, 33, died Thursday at Stanford Hospital after she was on the road to recovery from injuries suffered in an accident in front of her home.

Theiss was an outstanding teacher, one of three chosen from a field of 2,200 applicants for a special early education school on the Stanford campus. In her honor, the school will name a playground area and new building after her as part of the early education school. The dedication will take place at 5 p.m. tomorrow on the Stanford campus.

Theiss' mother, Helen Woodward, the former Pleasanton City Clerk, told The Times yesterday that she was held in very high esteem in the school as well as at her church, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in San Jose.

Theiss was a choir director at the San Jose church and wrote religious plays which were presented in San Jose and other Bay Area cities. She was instrumental in the formation of Ixoyz Music, a religious music publishing house. Persons wishing to honor her name may make contributions to the publishing house in care of the church, 1550 Meridian Ave., San Jose.

Theiss grew up in Pleasanton and Livermore, was graduated from Livermore High School, and took her degree from San Jose State.

Besides Woodward, Theiss' survivors include her daughter, Karol James of San Jose, her father, Albert Theiss of Hayward, a brother, Glenn Theiss of Livermore, and two nieces, Britt and Raquelle Theiss of Concord.

Services were held at the church

Monday with interment in Pleasanton Cemetery Tuesday. The eulogy at graveside was read by her uncle, Bill Casterson, of Los Altos Hills.

Strikers seeking holiday, vacation pay from county

Alameda County Bureau
OAKLAND — Attorneys for striking county employees filed suit this week demanding vacation and holiday pay for 11 strikers scheduled to leave this month.

The suit claims the denial of vacation and "floating holiday" pay violates a memorandum of understanding between the county and members of the striking Service Employees International Union.

An attorney for the county, however, said: "Needless to say, it's a frivolous law suit." He asked not to be named.

But labor lawyer Stewart Weinberg says the 11 workers were granted vacations before the strike began June 2. If the vacations and holidays are not claimed by the June 30 expiration date of the memo, the strikers will lose their accrued time off.

In a June 9 note to department heads, county administrator Loren Enoch, under directions from the county board of supervisors, issued orders to deny sick leave and cancel all strikers' previously scheduled vacations during "a work stoppage or strike." The vacations are to be reset when strikers return.

The suit also asks that Judge John P. Sparrow be disqualified from hearing the case, alleging he "is prejudiced against (Weinberg) and attorneys for this firm (Van Bourg, Allen, Weinberg and Rogers of San Francisco)" and the strikers.

The firm also is representing crafts unions involved in this spring's San Francisco strike.

SP spurs historic depot plans as new Pleasanton restaurant

PLEASANTON — The city may become the restaurant capital of the valley.

Confirming reports first published in The Times, Southern Pacific officials said yesterday they would be "sending out to bid" specifications for development of the Neal Street railway depot as a restaurant.

The rustic, century-old depot, for the past several years the Pleasanton Glass Co., and adjoining Wayside and Delucchi Parks on First Street were awarded to SP in a $200,000 settlement with attorney and former Alameda County Superior Court Judge S. Victor Wagler and heirs of the Neal-Harris estates.

The railway has agreed to work closely with Pleasanton officials in planning for the park lands, currently zoned for commercial development as retail shops. But no decision on the city's only downtown greenbelt has been reached.

"We already have several very good (restaurant) people who've made inquiries," the spokesman said, "and we'll be sending it out to bid this week. It will be a class place."

Names of the bidders were not released, but the railway's land company has lease agreements with the Walnut Creek Railroad Station, owned and operated by the Ancient Mariner — Rusty Pelican Corp. of Southern California, and the Chinese Station in Berkeley.

Both may be on the list of prospective tenants, although the SP official added he "won't say any chain restaurants are involved."

The depot restaurant, which may form the hub of a retail center if the parks are converted in accordance with their zoning, will join the recently opened Marchand's Restaurant on Santa Rita Road and Villa Armando's winery-restaurant on St. John's Street.

A French restaurant, La Rochelle, is under construction on St. Mary's Street, and two Mexican restaurants are scheduled for Main Street.

The Casa del Sol is moving into the two-story Victorian next to police headquarters, while former city planning director Ric Castro plans a Mexican restaurant in the next block.

The city is peppered with restaurants in the outlying districts, while the new constructions are concentrated downtown.

Why valley homes cost more today

First of a series

Fluctuating cost of borrowing money, rising city fees, higher labor and material costs, and some "unreasonable" government policies on growth are reasons the valley is experiencing high housing prices.

That's the opinion of one valley builder who was only too glad to air his views, almost non-stop, about why the average prices of a new home is rising by nearly $1,000 a per month.

The labor and material costs rise with the inflationary spiral, which right now is pegged around 6 to 8 per cent a year.

But there are factors not tied to inflation, said the developer. "The cost of land, whether you buy it new or held it and couldn't build on it, is costing the building industry a lot of money because of the interest builders pay. The prime rate got up to 9 and 10 per cent in 1974 and 1975 and you had to borrow at two or three points over that. If it costs more to borrow, you have to capitalize it into the project," he said.

"Beyond the money costs, the thing which has gone up the most in northern California has been city and agency fees," said the developer. "Unfortunately there is little hard evidence that some of the fee increases are a reflection of the economy."

One builder, said the developer, found that labor and materials in one town rose 30 per cent between 1971 and 1975. In the same period, the building-related fees rose 400 per cent, said the developer.

"In one small subdivision of about 70 units, it cost $294,000 to do the work and the fees for it cost $243,000," said the builder.

One city in the Bay Area raised its inspection fees from 3 to 4 per cent. The builder thought that the 3 per cent would have kept up with inflation since it was geared to the cost of labor and materials which was rising.

Nationally the median sale price of a new home in February was $43,000. That means that half the new homes in America sold for under that price and half sold above it. That price estimate was made by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board which estimated a month later the median price rose to $44,000. They also compared it to the median price of $38,000 in February, 1975.

The practical consequence of this for the valley is that most people who moved in during the last five years wouldn't qualify to buy their homes today.

"Someone took the standard qualifying formula and applied it to the Pleasanton income mix," said the builder. "It turns out that only the top 30 per cent of the population could qualify for typical new homes which now are in the $60,000 to $70,000 price range."

— by Ron McNicoll

That's a price list lying in front of those boards which are going into the model home in the background. The price range for the Pleasanton models run all the way from $62,450 to $73,450. For more on the disappearance of the moderate income home from the valley, see accompanying story.

Two women injured in apparent kidnap attempt

LIVERMORE — Two women who gave a ride to a man after he bought them drinks at a local bar were slashed with a knife when the suspect attempted to kidnap the pair, police reported yesterday.

According to reports, the women met the suspect Sunday night at the 125 Club on North Livermore Avenue. They met again Monday night when the suspect bought them drinks and danced with one, police said.

At about 1:25 a.m. Tuesday, the suspect asked the women if they could give him a ride to Locust and L streets because he was too drunk to drive. He handed his car keys to one woman, but they instead took another car belonging to one of the victims.

When the car stopped at Locust and L, the suspect, seated behind the driver, grabbed her around the neck and said, "OK, you're going with me." The woman in the front seat attempted to free his hold around the driver, and was stabbed in the right forearm with a small knife.

The driver was cut twice in the throat as she struggled to get free. The passenger grabbed the doorhandle and started to leave, and as the suspect jumped out to stop her, the women locked the doors and drove off.

One woman took four stitches for her deep arm wound, while the driver received treatment for minor cuts on her throat.

Police learned the suspect had frequented the 125 Club and Dan's Place on South Livermore Avenue almost daily during the last week. A check of the suspect's car keys has so far been futile.

Two youths arrested, admit to Plumas Court burglary
LIVERMORE — Two 16-year-old youths arrested on suspicion of burglarizing a Plumas Court residence Saturday admitted to the crime and returned most of the stolen property to police.

Police received an anonymous tip that a house on Plumas Court whose residents were on vacation had been burglarized. The caller claimed he had seen a youth carrying items from the house, and supplied police with the suspect's name.

Detective Dave Hollander arrived at the suspect's house, read the youth his rights in the presence of his parents, and asked about the burglary. The youth denied any involvement, claiming he knew nothing of the incident.

Hollander received permission from the youth's parents to search his room. He found no property suspected stolen, but did uncover a baggie of marijuana and arrested the youth on suspicion of simple possession of the drug.

Police searched the burglarized house and discovered fresh pry marks on a sliding glass patio door. However, a secondary lock on the doors prevented entry. Entrance was apparently made by the removal of six panes of glass from a bathroom jalousie (louvered) window.

A second interview with the suspect at police headquarters produced a confession, with the youth admitting he helped another boy carry property from the home, and then identifying the second suspect.

Police contacted the second suspect, who admitted his part in the crime. He told police he took a television, clock radio, two watches and a ring, while his accomplice took a stereo. The youth later returned to police the goods he had taken.

Both suspects were released to their parents with notices to appear in court.

Bluebell Drive home burglarized, $200 loss

LIVERMORE — Burglars entered an unlocked garage door to Frank Edward Farris' Bluebell Drive home over the weekend and took $200 in fishing gear and a golf club.

Missing items include three spinning reels, two spinning rods, one fly rod, and a Wilson brand five iron. Police have no suspects.

One thing that especially infuriates Mrs. Fulton is EBRPD's designation of land as "wilderness."

"There is no wilderness left in Alameda County," she insists. "It's all ranchland — cattle grazing, people living on it, dirt roads. There are cattle still grazing in Sunol Regional 'Wilderness'."

EBRPD's policy describes "wilderness" as "generally undisturbed, natural and roadless... the viewshed from within the wilderness unit should be generally undeveloped. Within that viewshed, development should be prevented either through acquisition, lease, adequate land-use controls, easements or the commitment of another public agency owning or controlling the surrounding land..."

That part about "adequate land-use controls" also has Apperson worried. He wants to develop his Sunol property into a guest ranch, and is currently engaged in a lawsuit over that proposal.

Meanwhile, he finds it a nuisance to be next to a park where trespassers wander onto his property, leaving behind litter.

Both Apperson and Fulton feel like the proverbial fleas bothering the elephant, when they try to stop EBRPD's determined land acquisition program.

"They're all in cahoots," Mrs. Fulton says bluntly of several government agencies and citizens' groups who seem to have the same land acquisition goals.

For example, EBRPD attorney Donn Black chaired a committee for the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG's) 1975 report on "Areas of Critical Environmental Concern."

It was no accident, she says, that the ABAG report's land acquisition suggestions are almost identical with the wording in EBRPD's 1973 Master Plan.

She also points out that Alameda County's chief of planning, and two assistants, Bill Fraley, Betty Crowley and Bruce Fry, served on an EBRPD task force. And, she says, groups like the Sierra Club (which she dismisses as an entirely socialist movement), League of Women Voters and American Association of University Women as well as Margaret Tracy with her Save the Ridglands campaign, are working together to wrest the land from the ranchers.

Not that the movement stops in Alameda and Contra Costa Counties. A ridglands study now being made also involves Santa Clara County. That will be the third county to be annexed onto EBRPD, she predicts — although EBRPD officials in Oakland have not made any public moves in that direction.

"Nationalization of all land," says Fulton — "that's what these people want."

"Because whoever controls the land, controls the movement of the people."

Proposed Amador cuts in budget reexamined

Initial reaction to proposed cuts in school bus service for students attending Amador Valley and Dublin High School has been almost nil, though parents of agriculture students living in Mission-Happy Valley are disturbed at cuts announced more than a month ago.

At a budget session Tuesday night, Amador Valley Joint School District trustees received proposed first and second level cuts as advanced by Superintendent Bruce Newlin. Newlin's recommendations came following lengthy discussions and figuring by staff members, headed by Doug Rose, assistant superintendent for business services.

Elimination of three buses from service would make almost all students at Amador and Dublin "walkers." The exception would be those living in the outer reaches of Vineyard Avenue (Vintage Hills area) and beyond Komandorski.

Rose told trustees the proposed cuts, which still must be ratified by trustees, would trim $30,000 from the budget.

A second major item, in terms of impact, is the recommended elimination of district support for freshman athletics. If approved, high school freshmen would no longer have purely yearling teams in football, basketball and baseball. Salaries for coaches of same would be eliminated.

Thus, freshmen wishing to participate in these sports would have to try for a junior varsity or varsity berth.

Other recommended top priority cuts included uniforms for custodians, potential saving of $10,303; towels and laundry service, $23,623; placing $20,000 from funds generated by the community service tax to grounds personnel.

The Pleasanton and Amador district boards have scheduled meetings next Tuesday and Wednesday to act on the tentative budgets for 1976-77.

Residents in the districts concerned with potential cuts have through the month of July to register their comments with the administration and/or boards.

Picket line threatening fair

Presiding Superior Court Judge Robert K. Barber last week issued a temporary restraining order limiting pickets to "informational lines," but other unions have not broached the lines.

The pari-mutuel workers are members of the main Service Employees International Union, three of whose locals have been on strike against the county since June 2.

Attorney John E. Cantwell, hired by the fair board in its dispute with the union, said earlier this week that he would go after contempt of court citations against union leaders and pickets at the fair grounds.

Photographs of more than 60 pickets have been taken for future identification.

But a spokeswoman for the union said the wording on the pickets' signs conforms to Judge Barber's order.

"I'm not sure what an 'informational picket line' is," she added.

On another front, county administrator Loren Enoch gushed warm appreciation to employees who have crossed the line.

The board of supervisors and his office "want to express our deep appreciation to you for continuing to provide needed services under very difficult conditions," he said in a memo yesterday.

The supervisors "have not reacted to the strike in the same manner as the San Francisco Board of Supervisors," he reminded them, pointing to that county's press releases which allegedly attacked strikers and proposed charter amendments "which were quite punitive."

He also asks non-strikers to lobby on the county's behalf with their brethren on the picket lines.

"The county administration is fighting the union leadership, not the union membership," Enoch says. "You (non-strikers) know some of those people who are not working and can, perhaps, ask them these questions, or give them copies of these questions."

Enoch also reminds workers the board will allocate $400,000 in next year's budget for permanent shift scheduling at Highland General and Fairmont Hospitals, and for additional workers in social services, three bones of contention to striking employees.

The budget is expected to be approved this morning. In his report publicized yesterday, Enoch's office also says 66.4 per cent of some 7,300 rank-and-file workers were at their stations yesterday.

Less than 2,500 of the nearly 5,500 employees represented by the three locals are manning picket lines, according to the figures. Only 4,000 of the 5,500 are union members, however.

More than 3,000 employees stayed off their jobs in the first week of the strike, but, according to the county's calculations, the figure has fallen as the strike has waned.

No new negotiations have been set.

Of course, there will be a full menu from which to choose your favorite, along with another exclusive speciality named Sopapillas. Lino and Betty Moreno, Jim and Anne Faust, Jose and Rachel Cortez, Bob and Dianne Everett, Bob and Connie Le Bow, Dick and Colette Flores, Jack and Barbara Kahn, Anreas and Carmine Rodriguez, Tony and Elana Ruiz, and Leroy and Ramona Gazzaway. Beautifully appointed, the restaurant is scheduled to open on or about July 9.

Entertaining the kids this summer

DUBLIN — Ever dream of packing the kids off for Frontier Village or Great America without having to go there yourself?

The Valley Community Services District is volunteering to do the job — as part of their action-packed summer program.

VCSD will also entertain the kids all day and even in the evening at playgrounds. They're sponsoring ing a carnival and teen dances and adult classes and a plethora of other activities, all at nominal cost to local taxpayers.

The summer playground program began this week for 6- to 12-year-olds. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Dublin, Fallon, Fredricksen and Walt Disney School playgrounds; 1 to 5 and 6 to 9 p.m. at Wells and Nielsen Schools.

Reservations must be made in advance for summer excursions, which are designed for the 7 to 12 set. The schedule: July 7, Marine World; Aug. 4, Great America; Aug. 25, Frontier Village.

Then there's the "Superstars" contest on Saturday, July 31, for ages 8 to 13. Events include free throw toss, softball throw, frisbee throw and others of that ilk.

The "Penny Carnival" will be Wednesday, Aug. 11 in the Dublin High parking lot.

Teens and adults can drop into the Dublin High gym to play basketball, football, softball, weight lifting and other sports. Hours are 6-9 p.m. weekdays, June 24 through July 2; 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m.,

July 6 through Aug. 13.

Shannon Park is becoming teen headquarters this summer. They can play pool, shuffleboard, ping pong and table soccer on weekday afternoons and evenings, Saturday evenings.

A teen dance is planned for Aug. 7.

Day trips cover an attractive variety of spots: Don Castro Regional Park (June 26); Sunol Regional Park (July 1); Stinson Beach in Marin County (July 8); Great America (July 20); Santa Cruz (July 22); Mt. Tamalpais in Marin (July 29); Del Valle Regional Park in Livermore (Aug. 5); Mt. Diablo (Aug. 12); Russian River canoe trip (Aug. 26) and Coyote Hills Regional Park (Sept. 2).

Teens will also be treated to overnight backpacking trips: July 13 to 15 at Big Sur, Aug. 17 to 19 at Boulder Creek.

Not to overlook the seniors, meetings are held noon to 3 p.m. on Thursdays at Shannon Park Community Center. Bring a sack lunch and a quarter to pay for coffee and inci-dentals. Anyone 50 and older is welcome.

Seniors are also invited to drop in 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday to enjoy crocheting, knitting, sewing, card playing, bingo, pool, ping pong, shuffleboard and much more.

VCSD also has a long list of classes and swimming lessons in their yellow summer brochure, available from VCSD at 7051 Dublin Blvd. (828-7711).

Property value skyrockets and taxes jack up in SR

DANVILLE — More than 1,000 irate taxpayers squared off against local politicians this week.

The common question was: Why? Amid cries of discontent, county tax assessor Fred Wanaka tried to explain why property taxes have increased drastically in the San Ramon Valley. He explained property values in the valley were increasing faster than elsewhere in the county, therefore the yearly increase of property reassessments occur.

Wanaka predicted the only way to stop such increases is by limiting government spending, not by passing property tax reform bills.

"If you are going to shift the property tax burden you better look and see what this is going to do to sales and property taxes. It would increase the sales tax about 10 cents on the dollar and double your income tax," he said.

Al Bush, an organizer of the tax meeting, called for residents to attempt to get an injunction to stop the increased property tax in the San Ramon Valley from being collected this year.

Both district five supervisor candidates called for barebone spending by the county board of supervisors.

Eric Hasseltine, supervisor candidate from Danville, pointed out that the board of supervisors controls only 20 per cent of the property tax collected by the county. Much of the money collected in the San Ramon Valley goes to the local school district.

Orrin Bachelor, San Ramon Valley Unified School District business manager, explained school taxes are increasing because the state is spending less money to educate students to the San Ramon Valley.

Assemblyman Mori to dilute bill banning MD drug sales

Assemblyman Floyd Mori will amend his bill banning doctor's office sale of drugs because of opposition from the California Medical Association.

Mori told The Times yesterday that his bill had good support in committee, but several suggestions were made in committee to make it more palatable to the CMA.

Mori will amend the bill in July and return it to the business and professions committee in August.

Mori was disappointed by the CMA opposition. He contends that the bill is the logical consequence of a law already on the books which forbids doctors from owning pharmacies. It only follows that they should not be allowed to dispense drugs in their offices, Mori believes.

He has made certain exceptions in the bill: doctors can give patients drug samples left by pharmaceutical firms and free clinics and county clinics could also dispense drugs.

Mori said the CMA testimony against the bill was general and seemed to center around "the practice of doctors for 200 years to dispense medicine." He said he is not prohibiting that right, but wants to control the abuses.

Much of the abuse has come from so called "weight-loss" doctors who prescribe and dispense amphetamines to their patients. Mori said most weight-loss doctors do a good job, but some, like a Hayward physician who sold 2 million amphetamines to an individual, are betraying that trust.

Other abuses by doctors have included improper labeling and packaging and record keeping, said Mori.

Another Mori bill, one calling on President Ford to give a full pardon to Rose d'Aquino, known as Tokyo Rose during World War II, will be voted today by the Assembly. Mori is optimistic it will pass and go on to the Senate where he thinks it also will be successful.

School's out and VCSD programs are in at Dublin and San Ramon playgrounds and at Shannon Community Center, where this shot was taken. (Times photo)

When schoolwork makes the student feel better

By LILLY AULT

"Why I think it is a wonderful program," stated Mrs. Pat Potter of Pleasanton. "It helps the child to go forward rather than be stagnant and possibly have to repeat a grade. I also think it helps the student to recuperate as they are not worried about being left behind and perhaps giving up friends that they had in their classroom."

Mrs. Potter was referring to the home instruction program offered to students who are ill for an extended period of time which prohibits them from going to school. The program is offered by the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District, the Pleasanton Joint District and the Murray School District under the special services division of the district.

Mrs. Jenny Anderson of Pleasanton has been working as a home teacher for approximately two years. As a former schoolteacher, Mrs. Anderson wanted to stay home with her children while they were small. After the family was in school, she felt she would like to get back into her profession in an area where she could work yet be home at the time when her children were home.

Through a friend she heard about the special program in the school and signed up to take part in the pupil personnel service. She "loves it" as it gives her a feeling of "great satisfaction" to help the students while they are ill and to see them able to return to class without being behind.

The schedule for the pupil receiving the services consists of five hours of tutoring per week or one hour per day. "Pupils in this program do a lot on their own," said Mrs. Anderson. "I help in whatever way I can be of assistance."

The dedicated teacher finds teaching in this manner most interesting and that she too is learning with some of the students. "I never had California history," she said, "therefore I am learning a lot in that area."

"One of the big advantages," she admits laughingly, "is that there are no discipline problems."

It is necessary, however, for Mrs. Anderson to prepare lesson plans to some degree as well as do extensive reading in order to be able to discuss the lesson with the students. Her job also entails keeping records of time the student spends per week in order for the district to qualify for ADA (average daily attendance).

Minimum requirement for each student is three hours per week or a maximum of five hours per week.

Each assignment Mrs. Anderson goes out on, she finds to be unique and different. "You have to be able to understand the individual you are dealing with, that he is ill, not pamper him, yet not put too much pressure on him."

It is her suggestion that parents, as soon as they know their child will be laid up at home for some time and will be permitted by the doctor to do required work at home, to contact the school their child attends as soon as possible and make arrangement for home instruction.

Sometimes parents let time go by without realizing it and the child becomes quite behind in his work even before the teacher starts working with him. This makes the task more difficult for the child as well as the teacher.

There have been cases where Mrs. Anderson has gone to the hospital to tutor a pupil when he is confined there for an extended time.

Mrs. Anderson feels the program helps to keep the students spirits up while recuperating and in some cases makes getting well come a little faster.

Mrs. Potter's B.A. degree was obtained from the University of Tennessee and her M.S. degree from the University of Illinois. Besides her three children, Cynthia, Stephen and Philip, Mrs. Anderson enjoys playing the piano, reading and antiques.

Her husband, Bill, teaches social studies in Hayward in addition to counseling.

Daughter Cindy, who has been out of school on two different occasions due to surgery, feels pupil personnel service "makes it wonderful not to have to worry about being behind in my school work and made it easier for me to get well from my surgery." She received daily assignments directly from each of her teachers so she was performing the same studies as those students attending class. Mrs. Anderson, the tutor, would take the completed work back to the school and place it in a designated box for students who were on the special service project. Cindy would also take the same test as that given to her classmates.

Cindy who will be a senior at Foothill High School feels the teachers, kids and staff have "just been great" in helping her while she is confined to home.

Cindy's mother could not give enough praise to the services as she, as any mother would be,

was worried about her daughter missing so much school if the surgery were performed during the school year. "This way," said Mrs. Potter, "we did not have to postpone the surgery and have Cindy in continued pain through school. She was able to keep up and feel as though she was still part of her class by having Mrs. Anderson come to the home."

Mrs. Potter further stated she was very glad the school board had this type of service available. "I didn't know anything about the program until there was need for it," she said. "I showed great concern to the doctor about Cindy having to miss so much school and he was the one who made me aware of the program."

"The fact there is no cost involved is great too," said Mrs. Potter, "as expenses can run high when an emergency hits a family."

Parents who have need for a home teacher should go to the school their child is attending to fill out a form requesting the services of a home teacher. A doctor's form is also necessary stating the child is able to cope and up to doing the work at home. It is also the doctor who determines when the child may return to school, not the teacher. The child must have a written release from the doctor stating he is capable of returning to his classes.

The Pleasanton Elementary Joint District has 15 home teachers on the list with five participating. The high school has 19 on the list with 12 active. This according to a spokesman for the school is because the service is called for more at the high school level than at the elementary level.

The Amador Valley Joint Union High School office records indicate the following number of students assisted in the program: 43 high school students physically handicapped; 14 elementary physically handicapped and four elementary educationally handicapped; and one educationally handicapped high school student.

Kim Rathjen, 9, and her brother, Mark, 11, put together their nickels and dimes to help send a child of a low-income family to the YWCA camp planned at Dublin next month.

Nickels and dimes send a child to YWCA camp

Young Kim and Mark Rathjen of Pleasanton remembered the fun they had at summer camp, and so they were enthusiastic about helping other children, whose parents could not afford the expense, enjoy camp, too.

The two children put together their nickels and dimes to sponsor a child attending the YWCA camp at Dublin at the suggestion of their mother who matched their contribution. The necessary $12.50 was brought, in change, to the Volunteer Bureau in Pleasanton which had advertised for sponsors.

The YWCA summer day camp, sponsored by the South County YWCA, will be held at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection in Dublin for two weeks beginning July 27. Cost of the camp for children ages 4 through 11 is $12.50.

Sessions are scheduled Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. They include songs, games, cooking snacks every day, and crafts such as tie-dyeing, crushed aluminum foil projects, beadwork, leatherwork, etc.

Children will bring bag lunches for four out of the six days, with drinks provided. A cook-out is planned July 29, and a free family carnival Aug. 5.

Registration deadline is July 16. Call the YWCA at 278-3180 for information. Contact the Volunteer Bureau at 462-3570 if interested in sponsoring a low-income child at camp.

Prior to her election as district president, Mrs. Ryan was district chairman for crime prevention and justice for juveniles, as well as district first and second vice-president.

She has also been active as a girl scout leader, as president of Sheffield Village PTA, and as an ordained deacon of San Leandro First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Ryan is also an honorary life member of San Leandro High School PTA.

She and her husband have two children and one grandchild. She co-owned her own business for 13 years, and is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

As district president, Mrs. Ryan will be responsible to 34 clubs representing nearly 3,000 women. Mount Diablo District is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which is the largest women's organization in the world with a membership of nearly 11 million.

Mrs. Robert Church of Dublin will serve under Mrs. Ryan as corresponding secretary.

In addition to the installation of new officers, the convention also saw the presentation of awards in some 39 categories including communications, consumer concerns, spiritual values, alcoholism, drug abuse, citizenship, art, literature, Indian affairs, community improvement, sewing, press and photography.

Sommerfest raises the roof Saturday

arts*

One hundred pounds of sauerkraut, 50 pounds of bratwurst, 800 slices of apple strudel, 150 pounds of Polish sausages, 50 pounds of frankfurters and 800 pretzels — and countless kegs of beer.

Sound like a feast? It is!

Eating is at least half the fun (for some ALL the fun) of the popular Sommerfest celebration in Livermore which will welcome the long, hot summer — Bavarian style — Saturday, June 26 at The Barn.

There is the hearty Old World repast, and plenty of opportunity to work off that apple strudel and work up a thirst in a lively polka sounded by Joe Smiell's Bavarian band. Take a breather and thrill to the rousing, colorful entertainment by the Von Kinsky Folk Dancers.

Sommerfest is pure Bavarian in spirit, although the robust and fun-loving people of the Bavarian Alps do not actually celebrate the arrival of summer with such a festival. Sommerfest is unique to Liver-more, and, after nine years, a genuine Livermore tradition.

Madeline Newkirk, responsible this year for the all-important food concession at Sommerfest, spent two years with her husband in Germany. She offers this insight into the people of that country's southernmost, loftiest state.

"Bavaria is very mountainous and covered with lush forests. Its people that are hard - working and happy-go-lucky farmers who still maintain many old traditions in their dress and entertainment."

She reports that the Bavarian housewife still wears the traditional dirndl, or gathered long skirt with an apron, because it is practical as well as pretty.

So don your dirndl (or lederhosen) and join the crowd from 6 to 11:30 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children. The invitation from Festmeister and Festmeisterin Arnie and Margo Kirkewoog, on behalf of the Livermore Cultural Arts Council, is well worth the taking.

Like everyone else, book manufacturers are taking advantage of the "buy" - centennial to market lots of Americana that they hope will appeal to kids — or at least to the librarians and adult relatives who do most of the buying of kids' books.

For the youngest, Golden Press has come up with three big, colorful productions, one of them on elections and two on colonial history.

Christopher for President is about a stur headed eight - year - old who decides to run for President and wends his way through pages of puns — political "parties," "throwing his hat in the ring" (he tosses his baseball cap into his sister's hula hoop), "the Bench" — you get the idea.

It may be confusing, but at least it's not boring, as politics can tend to be if seen in bookworm

overview.

Written by "Addie," the tale is illustrated brightly by cartoonist Mel Crawford.

Pea Patch Island, full of charming Ronald Himmler pastels of cobblestone streets and three - cornered hats, is a legend of how an island sprang up in the Delaware River after a load of dried peas landed there in a shipwreck.

Authoress Polly Curren weaves the tale in verse for the 4 to 9 age group; the book is $4.95 in hardcover.

Ring for Liberty recounts the Declaration of Independence story from the point of view of a little boy, Jonathan McNair, who has to give his uncle the signal to ring the bell in Philadelphia.

Writer - illustrator Virginia Parsons aims her enjoyable story at 4 to 9 - year - olds.

Two publishers had the same idea for luring older readers into the usually boring domain of American history ... by making it sound gory and scary, of course.

An old trick and one that gets the kid to pick up the book but not necessarily to stay with it. Doubleday's version is America's Most Haunted Places by Bruce and Nancy Roberts ($5.95), pegged for grades 6 and 7.

Trick photographs show "ghost scenes" while each well - researched but thinly written chapter tells a different legend of ghost rider or mutilated soldier of yore.

Prentice - Hall offers The Phantom Hand and other American Hauntings ($5.95) by Walter Harter, illustrated with shadowy etchings by Robert Totten.

Chapters on "The Creeping House" (San Jose's Winchester House) and "The Phantom Line on the Mission Floor" (the Alamo) bring bits of American history to life in creepy fashion.

And if that doesn't make you lose your appetite, here's a beautiful volume filled with venerable Early American recipes: Slumps, Grunts and Snickerdoodles published by the Seabury Press.

What's best about the recipes is that they're introduced by chapters of history, lore and vivid description. The net result is a "you are there" feeling as well as a tummy full of hush puppies or whatever.

One thing that I learned about match point play at a very early stage in my bridge career was to study both my contract and possible other contracts.

Thus, when dummy hit the table I saw that at least half the field would be in four spades. We really should have been there also. I should have raised my partner to two spades instead of bidding one notrump.

The normal play in spades would be for declarer to ruff a heart and play West for the queen of spades. He would make five if West held that card and four if East held it. I also noted that if I played West for the spade queen I would wind up making one trick less than the spade declarers and have a poor score.

Accordingly, I won the heart in dummy, led dummy's jack of spades and let it ride. This enabled me to pick up East's queen of spades, collect 10 tricks and a top score, since the rest of the field made either four spades or just three notrump.

Ask the Jacobys

A Vermont reader wants to know our rebid with:
▲ K x x x x x ♦ K J x x x x
We have opened one club and partner has responded one spade.

We have no problem. We raise two spades. We don't like the idea of bidding one notrump with the worthless doubleton in hearts. If partner has only four spades and a weak hand it will be no tragedy to play two spades with four opposite three. If he has a good hand he is not going to bid four spades unless he has a good spade suit.

Frosh athletics near end?

The can of worms representing freshman sports in the East Bay Athletic League, shut in a fury of public outcry several months ago, has been reopened by the need for cuts in the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District budget.

After the EBAL's eight schools had agreed to drop frosh teams last year a fight by a group of Livermore and Granada parents won a reinstatement of the program in the Livermore Valley Unified School District and ultimately, the entire EBAL.

But during a preliminary budget review Tuesday night, Amador superintendent Dr. Bruce Newlin listed frosh sports among possible money-saving cuts made necessary by the defeat of local ballot Measure A two weeks ago.

Although Newlin's list was only a menu from which the Board of Trustees may select what it chooses to slice off as expendable, the inclusion of frosh sports immediately made it controversial in the eyes of many supporters of local athletics.

While not confirming that frosh sports may be on their way out, board chairman Wally Decker hinted that it was a strong possibility when contacted yesterday.

"As you might expect, each area of interest has its supporters and detractors," he said. "So it won't do to do all the cutting in one area. We prefer, of course, to cut nothing."

He added that while many believe that frosh sports are a vital part of student development, the program will be strongly considered in trimming the budget.

"One reason this should be looked at is the fact that there would still be frosh-soph or junior varsity teams, so many freshmen would still be served by the program," he explained.

While the estimated cost of $12,000 does not place the frosh program among the more expensive under the board's scrutiny, it was a high priority item.

Nothing will be certain, however, for some time. "We don't have enough data yet," Decker said. "We just want to see what we have that we can cut."

He went to explain that all the costs for the 1976-77 school year are not in, the district is still in collective bargaining with its employees and enrollment figures are not certain.

Those factors, combined

with possible state and federal adjustments made after the August 3 final budget deadline apparently make an accurate projection of cuts difficult to make now.

Board member Jack Delaney, while not a supporter of frosh sports, believes that the public must be served.

"I question what educational value the program has," he said. "But we're dealing with the education of the taxpayers children — if the majority of the public feels it has value my own opinion has nothing to do with it. If they think the money's better spent there than elsewhere else, then that's where we'll have to spend it."

He added that while he considers the dropping of the freshman program a viable alternative, public reaction to the suggestion at Tuesday's meeting was unfavorable.

"I was playing the devil's advocate, trying to see how it would go over and the people seemed to be against it," Delaney recalled. "It's probably the least popular of any possible cuts, probably because sports are so visible."

At the individual school level, the reaction was one of disappointment.

"I'd hate to see it happen," said Amador Valley principal Ralph Laird. "It really hurts the program."

After last night's meeting, I don't know what will come out of it."

Amador may be luckier than many schools currently facing the same situation, however, with an active boosters club willing to take on the task of getting together funds for the three frosh teams; baseball, basketball and football.

"We don't really have a plan right now," said booster club president Jack Hansen, himself a high school principal. "But we'll have to develop the resources."

Rummage sales of athletic equipment and bingo, recently legalized for charitable purposes, are ideas the boosters have in mind.

But even with the lure of gambling, Hansen is not optimistic about the boosters' chances of raising the money by the start of the school year.

"It's a difficult thing, I doubt we could do it that quickly," Hansen said, adding, "I don't know why the first thing they cut is athletics."

The adamantness of the Livermore parents would keep a freshman program alive in the rest of the EBAL even if the Amador district dropped its teams, however, according to San Ramon Valley Unified School District superintendent Allan Petersdorf.

"All of us are facing financial problems," he said. "But we wouldn't necessarily drop freshman sports just because Amador did."

"If Livermore didn't drop out we'd still have a reasonable schedule with six teams," he added.

Ex-Matador runner ready for hurdles

Ex-Granada High School runner Diana Stohr is treating Saturday's opening round of the Junior Olympics in a casual manner.

Not that she doesn't plan to do well in the meet at College of San Mateo. It's just that she's hoping to save her best for last.

"I'm just going to run to qualify in the 880- and 400-yard low hurdles," she said. "I'm hoping to get my time down in the third meet (the nationals). I'm still having problems with my hurdling."

Diana has never competed in the hurdles in actual competition so she admits she's a little weary of them.

"I guess you could say I'm scared of them," she laughed.

Stohr's best race is the 880 where she finished third in the state meet at 2:14.7. She thinks she can go even faster than that in the Olympics.

She won't be the only Matador athlete in the meet Saturday. Maria Anaya will compete in the low hurdles. Andy Heath will compete in the 440 and low hurdles and Jeff Cowling will run the mile. Kathy Honour (long jump and hurdles) and Brian McSherry (pole vault) are also possible entrants.

McSherry, who will be a senior at Granada in the fall, has a best of 12-7 in the vault. Honour was one of the top long jumpers in the North Coast Section this past spring before running into bad luck at the state qualifying meet. She looms as a strong contender in the long jump if she competes.

Canfield honored

Former Dublin High School athlete Greg Canfield was awarded the William A. Tenney Trophy at commencement exercises at Chabot College over the weekend.

The trophy is awarded annually to the Chabot student exhibiting outstanding athletic ability, citizenship and scholastic achievement.

Despite bronchitis and shin splints, Canfield placed third in the state junior college decathlon finals, breaking the school record in the process. Canfield also established Gladiator marks in the long jump and contributed to record-setting performances in the 880 and mile relays.

He was an all-Golden Gate Conference choice in the 440 in 1975 and earned all-Northern California and all-State mention in the decathlon this season.

He lettered twice for the Chabot team that ran up a 15-3 dual meet record during the past two seasons. He maintained a 3.6 grade point average as an engineering major at Chabot.

He plans to attend either Stanford University or the University of California at Berkeley and will go out for track.

Gaels lose opener to Spartans, 55-43

The Walnut Creek Spartans pulled away in the final 2:41 seconds on two baskets each by John Deignan and Jerry Pierson to beat the Dublin Gaels, 55-43 in a late opening night game of the Allied Brokers - Pleasanton Recreation Department summer basketball league Tuesday.

In another late game, the Hayward Mariners ripped the Danville Wolves, 51-34. Dublin got only one player into double figures, Ed LaPerle with 11, but got eight markers from powerful Jim Boulware and seven from Rich Barnes while Deignan led the Spartans with 14. Pierson added 12 for Walnut Creek and Bill Cashman 10.

The Mariners, who held a big advantage on the boards, broke the game open in the middle two periods via the shooting and driving of Jim Goudreau to top the Wolves.

Goodreau, wearing a very un-basketball number on his jersey — 88 — netted 22 points to lead all scorers. Bob Telles was Hayward's next high scorer with just eight points.

Phil Wiltz, a lanky, leaping forward for San Ramon High School's EBAL junior varsity champions last season, paced the losers with 13. Darren Johnson added nine.

A full schedule of games is on tap for tonight beginning at 6 p.m. in the Amador

Vineyard tagged for studies

PLEASANTON — Acting to minimize current and future traffic problems on Vineyard Avenue, the city council put the area in a study district with an eye to reducing density Monday night.

The council also put a limited parking ban on the south side of Vineyard Avenue in an effort to create a better traffic flow down the street.

The parking ban is supposed to allow Vineyard Avenue single family home owners the chance to park in front of their homes again. According to their testimony they have been forced off Vineyard Avenue by tenants across the street. Then they or others have to park in front of neighbors houses on Christina Court, compounding the problem.

The council's action on the study district will go to the planning commission soon, then return to the city council for final action.

The council's intention is to reduce the typical RM-1500 zoning for apartments in the area to RM-4000 zoning, a reduction in the total number from 386 to 192 potential units.

Another wrinkle is that existing apartments become non-conforming uses. If a building burns down, the owner would have to rebuild it at the new density, not the higher one which he or she was granted originally. That can have important financial consequences for a property owner and the council, at Councilman William Herlihy's request, instructed the staff to look into it.

The only exception to the recommended rezoning in the area was a parcel owned by Frank Auf der Mauer. He has secured 24 sewer permits and has his building process under way. Councilman Ken Mercer felt that the city had a moral obligation to allow him to continue and City Attorney Ken Kscheideg pointed out that if Auf der Mauer has improvements in the ground, there is a legal obligation as well.

Auf der Mauer has a total of 48 units planned for the site, with the remainder coming when he can get more building permits.

Sylvan retreat for rejects from Del Valle

Peaceful campsites at Del Valle are attracting crowds; try undiscovered Camp Shelley at Lake Tahoe to get away from it all.

Prohibitive parking zones set for fair

PLEASANTON — Parking will be prohibited on several city streets during the two-week run of the county fair beginning Sunday.

"No parking" signs will be erected Friday but actual enforcement will not begin until Sunday at 8 a.m., opening day of the fair.

Police advise local residents to avoid using the Bernal Avenue route during fairtime due to overcrowding caused by excessive parking problems and increased traffic entering and leaving the fairgrounds.

Parking will be prohibited on both sides of the total length of the following streets: Pleasanton Avenue, Bernal Avenue, Harrison Street, Augustine Street, and Fair Street.

In addition, parking on both sides of these streets for the given distances will also be prohibited: West Angela, from Pleasanton Avenue to Main Street; West Division Street, from Pleasanton Avenue to the railroad tracks; the one-way section of West Division; Division Street, from the intersection with St. Mary's to the bridge.

Also, Rose Avenue, from Pleasanton Avenue to Fair Street, and from Fair Street to the back gate; and the Western Pacific right of way, from St. John Street to Bernal.

Mori's staff offers seniors tax form aid

Assemblyman Floyd Mori's office is available to assist senior citizens in preparing their Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance Forms.

The program reimburses homeowners over the age of 62 for up to 96 per cent of their property tax. To qualify, one must have lived in the home between July 1, 1975, and June 30, 1976, and have a household income of not more than $10,000. The filing period is from May 15 to August 31.

"Both my district staff offices are staffed with persons knowledgeable in the preparation of these forms," said Mori. "We have done quite a few already and work closely with the Franchise Board to make sure there are no mistakes."

Forms and pamphlets describing the program are also available. For assistance, call Mori's Pleasanton office, 462-1822, or the Hayward office, 538-5533.

Livermore high reunion

LIVERMORE — Livermore High, Class of '66?

My, how the time has flown — your 10-year reunion is coming up already!

Pat Floyd Alexander (443-0747) and Sandy Graver Wyatt (443-5946) are helping to plan a bash to be held Saturday, Aug. 14, in the Coronado Room of the Sunol Valley Golf Course.

Anyone who has not received information on the reunion may call Pat or Sandy for details.

The Valley's big campground at Del Valle Regional Park is more popular than ever this summer, but Livermore's Camp Shelley at Lake Tahoe remains a retreat discovered by only a select few.

That's the summer camping outlook as reported by the East Bay Regional Park District (EBRPD) and the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD).

First, the good news: Camp Shelley, LARPD's 25-campsite haven under the pines near Emerald Cove, is expected to have campsites available most weekends, so even if you decide Friday morning to go camping on Saturday, you stand a good chance of getting a site.

The exception is Fourth of July weekend, which is already booked.

Camp Shelley costs $2.50 a night for Livermore residents, who have priority in reservations, and $5 for out-of-town residents. The spacious sites have water spigots of their own, hand-built food chests, fire pits and a nearby complex with bathrooms, showers, a volleyball court, ping pong tables and a campfire circle.

There is a ranger living at the site all summer.

Reservations are made at LARPD's administration building, 71 Trevano Road (off East First Street). There are no camper hookups.

Now, the bad news: EBRPD turned away 302 people from Del Valle on Memorial Day Weekend and are expecting this summer to be a record breaker for camping.

There are no reservations accepted for the big park; camping is on a first-come, first-served basis. The campground boasts attractive new facilities, some of which just opened this spring.

One reason Del Valle is attracting more campers is that other parks are closed due to the water shortage, and some boat ramps are high and dry because of drastically lower water levels at state lakes.

In contrast, Del Valle's water level is just seven feet below normal.

According to Tony Smith, manager of the Valley regional parks, the overnight camping area with its 109 sites logged 844 "camper nights" in May.

The 3,445-acre park is situated eight miles south of Livermore off South Livermore Avenue.

There were 45,268 visitors in May, setting an all-time record.
